News From Social Security Office

By Everette F. Bryant

Are you planning to retire soon? If so, you have probably been giving it a lot of thought for some time, and you have certainly made a number of preparations for such an important event. But have you secured information about social security benefits? Have you found out the amount of any benefits payable? Do you know what proofs you must present before you receive benefits? Your social security is a very important part of your future planning — and with a little advance preparation you can approach your retirement with a greater feeling of security. To repeat a slogan we often use, "Inquire before you retire."

You might ask "Why should I inquire before I retire?" You may have a general idea of the benefits you may be entitled to. But do you know that certain members of your family may also be entitled to benefits? Or that you may be entitled to some social security benefits even if you do not retire completely? If you do not know all the answers to these questions, get in touch with your nearest social security office well in advance of your planned retirement date and get the information you need.

No matter what your age, or how far away you are from retirement, social security is still important — for it provides dayto-day protection to you and your family against the risks of total disability and untimely death.

For further information contact your Social Security Office which is located at 2415 Langhorne Road in Lynchburg, Va.; they will be glad to assist you in every way.

What is "improper driver attitude?" Generally it is a combination of impatience, stubbornness and anger. It is tough sometimes to be an adult, but you've got to be if you want to drive — and live!
